

How to Provide Palliative Care

A 90-Minute Lunch & Learn Audio Conference by Elizabeth E. Hogue, Esq.

Audio Conference • Wednesday, September 18, 2019 • 12:00 pm—1:30 pm CDT
Encore: September 25, 2019 (Recorded playback available for 24 hours)

The need for palliative care is widely recognized. When patients who need palliative care meet the requirements of payor sources for home health or hospice services, providers may certainly admit palliative patients. Many patients who need palliative care, however, do not meet the eligibility criteria of the Medicare Program and other payors for home health or hospice services, or may do so only periodically. What about patients who need palliative care, but for whom there is no payor source? How can home care companies provide services to these patients? What are the limits on free services that can be given to patients? What are other possible sources of reimbursement? Providers that can “crack the nut” on rendering services to these patients are likely to receive a significant number of additional referrals, including patients who are periodically eligible for home care services and may receive hospice services. Learn how to do it the right way!

Presenter: Elizabeth Hogue is an attorney in private practice with extensive experience in health care. Prior to becoming an attorney, she was employed as a personnel manager by Blue Cross-Blue Shield Plan. She studied at the University of Maryland School of Law, concentrating in health law, and gained considerable clinical experience, course work, and employment experience in this area. Following her admission to the Bar, she developed an active practice in health law. She represents clients all over the country. Her clients are professional associations, managed care providers, and institutional health care providers, including hospitals, long-term care facilities, home health agencies, durable medical equipment companies, and hospices. Ms. Hogue gives numerous presentations each year on health-related topics. Her articles are regularly included in trade association publications and other journals. She is a member of the American Health Lawyers Association.
